UNPRECEDENTED

Fiscal year 2020 was unprecedented in so many ways. We fulfilled our vision to see the work of pioneering 20th- and 21st-century Black artists amplified throughout the BMA with the summer and fall 2019 openings of Every Day: Selections from the Collection; Generations: A History of Black Abstract Art; and the inaugural Robert E. Meyerhoff and Rheda Becker Commission, Mickalene Thomas: A Moment's Pleasure. We connected more deeply with the community through BMA Lexington Market programs that attracted more than 2,900 participants, and we were thrilled by the extraordinary gifts to endow the Ruth R. Marder Center for Matisse Studies and The Anne and Ben Cone Memorial Director position for the new center, further securing the Museum's role as a leader in scholarship on the French artist.

Then the great fanfare of the launch of the BMA's 2020 Vision initiative to highlight female-identifying artists was too soon interrupted by the coronavirus pandemic. The Museum was fortunate to have just opened an exhibition with artist Candice Breitz, as we were able to collaborate with her to make her incredibly topical videos accessible online through a new microsite. We also created gallery tour videos for all of the other exhibitions so that those artists would still achieve some of the recognition they deserved. Our commitment to exclusively purchase works by female-identifying artists during the calendar year was realized by the addition of major works by Barbara Chase-Riboud, Oletha DeVane, Janiva Ellis, Suzanne Jackson, Mary Lovelace O'Neal, Laura Ortman, Martine Syms, and Wendy Red Star, among others, elevating the stature of women artists in the BMA's collection.

Finding our way through a socially distanced world still plagued by centuries of racial discrimination heightened our determination to fulfill the Museum's mission to achieve artistic excellence and social equity with ever more clarity and conviction. Acknowledging this new reality, the BMA shifted its approach from discussion and presentation to more direct collaboration by reinventing The Necessity of Tomorrow(s) speaker series. With this new iteration of the program, the Museum helped strengthen Baltimore's arts ecology by providing direct financial support and visibility for artists and arts organizations, as well as art-making kits for distribution at the Greenmount West Community Center.

All of these initiatives were built on ideas core to us as an institution—from connecting audiences with exciting, thought-provoking works of art to championing artistic experimentation and positioning creative production as central to social change. I am extremely proud that the BMA has been able to keep the entire staff employed during this difficult time and I am profoundly grateful for the generous support that helped sustain us. We look forward to the moment ahead when we can fully reopen and welcome back everyone in person.

CHRISTOPHER BEDFORD, DOROTHY WAGNER WALLIS DIRECTOR

MISSION & VISION

BMA MISSION

The Baltimore Museum of Art connects art to Baltimore and Baltimore to the world, embodying a commitment to artistic excellence and social equity in every decision from art presentation, interpretation, and collecting, to the composition of our Board of Trustees, staff, and volunteers—creating a Museum welcoming to all.

BMA VISION

Over 100 years ago, The Baltimore Museum of Art was founded on the belief that access to art and ideas is integral to a vibrant and healthy civic life. This belief is at the heart of the BMA and remains our core value.

The BMA has long focused on acquiring the art of the present moment, while maintaining and deepening a historic collection made relevant through vigorous development and reinterpretation in all collecting areas. Through the courageous and risk-taking vision of previous Museum leaders, the BMA assembled and presented one of the most important collections of 18th-, 19th-, and 20th-century art in the United States. These visionary actions established the fundamental character of this Museum.

Building on this legacy of excellence, the BMA will form an equally compelling collection for the 21st century. Socially relevant, cutting-edge acquisitions, exhibitions, and programs will lead the way both locally and globally—and historical accuracy, merit, and equity will become the basis for a new canon across our Museum. Through collecting, researching, presenting, and interpreting the Museum's rich and varied collection, and by listening to the needs of our audience, the BMA will embody its commitment to excellence, fairness, relevance, and social justice. Every Museum policy and practice, strategic decision, as well as the composition of the Board of Trustees, staff, and volunteers will be driven by these responsibilities. Bold, brave, and essential, it is the unwavering vision of The Baltimore Museum of Art to be the most relevant publicly engaged museum in the United States and a dynamic model for all others.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The Board of Trustees offers leadership that fosters ongoing support for the Museum's ambitious mission and vision. This group comprises a diverse group of regional and national leaders in art, philanthropy, and business who are extraordinarily engaged and deeply committed to ensuring the long-term strength of the BMA. Board of Trustees, July 1, 2019, through June 30, 2020.

EXHIBITIONS

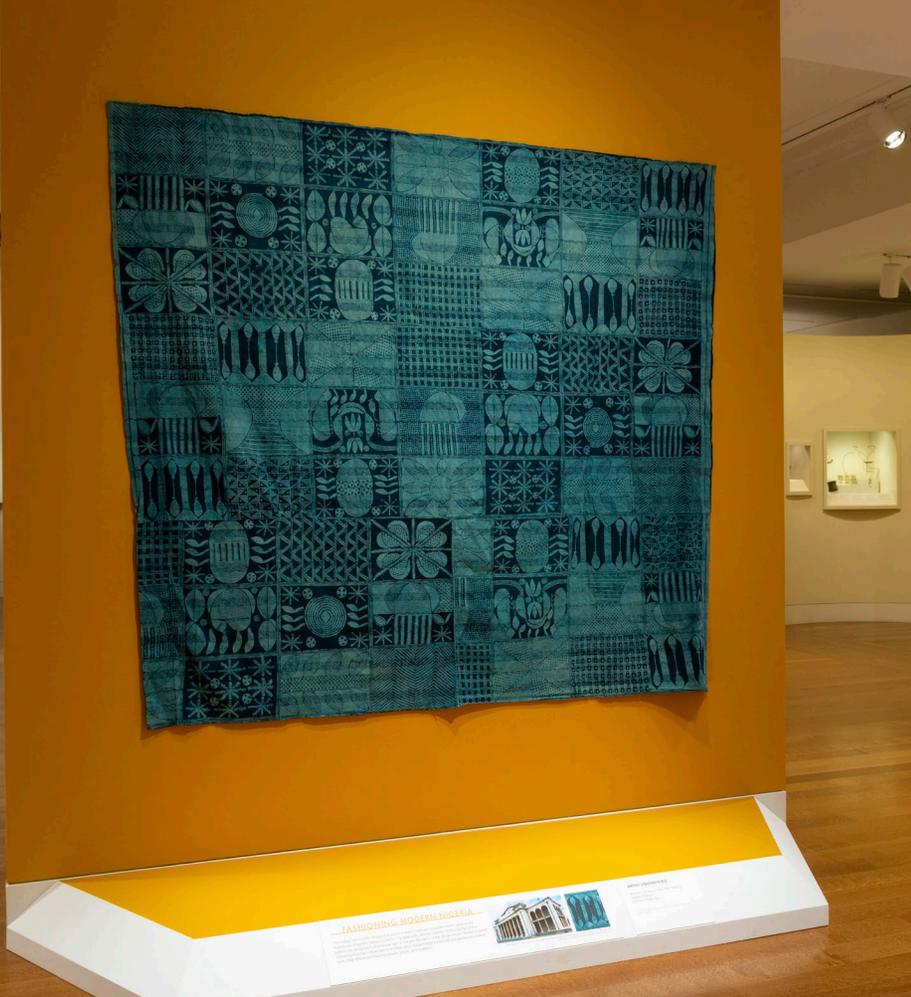

During this extraordinary year, the BMA reinforced its commitment to presenting the achievements of artists who have for too long been underrepresented in our artistic and cultural dialogues. Every Day: Selections from the Collection captured the aesthetic and conceptual interplay between artists who have traditionally been celebrated for their work and those that deserve much greater acclaim and examination. This was followed by Generations: A History of Black Abstract Art, a special exhibition from the collection of Pamela Joyner and Alfred Giuffrida that explored in depth the contributions of Black artists to the development of abstract art, and Melvin Edwards: Crossroads, which demonstrated the sculptor's vision of art and life as well as his engagement with the history of race and themes of the African Diaspora.

The inaugural Robert E. Meyerhoff and Rheda Becker Biennial Commission that debuted in fall 2019 was a resounding success in its aim to make the Museum more welcoming to a broader range of visitors through exceptional art. Mickalene Thomas' ambitious reinstallation of the East Lobby and Zamoiski East Entrance gave us a new and exciting aesthetic experience that offered the community a dynamic new space in which to connect with each other, the work, and the Museum. By Their Creative Force and Free Form: 20th-Century Studio Craft presented surveys of women artists from a variety of geographic regions and socioeconomic backgrounds to tell a more inclusive story of American modernism. Adorned: African Women & the Art of Identity demonstrated the critical role of women in shaping social identity across 20th-century Africa.

The BMA also presented 15 exhibitions that celebrated the achievements of female-identifying artists. Candice Breitz: Too Long, Didn't Read closed a few days after its opening in March then reappeared online through a new microsite that made publicly accessible nearly all of the videos from TLDR (2017) and Love Story (2016), which framed critical questions about systems of privilege and the ways in which the 24-hour news cycle, social media, and celebrity culture shape our understanding of the world and who we believe and trust. Solo exhibitions and installations of contemporary works by Zackary Drucker, Katharina Grosse, Ellen Lesperance, Valerie Maynard, Ana Mendieta, Elissa Blount Moorhead and Bradford Young, Howardena Pindell, Jo Smail, Shinique Smith, and SHAN Wallace amplified both global and local voices and emphasized the incredible range of contributions made by women artists to our understanding and experience of art today.

EDUCATION

The BMA's education department has made a lasting impact on hundreds of thousands of lives in Baltimore and beyond. This year, the department served more than 44,000 Members, visitors, students, and teachers through physical and virtual programs. Nearly 7,500 students participated in tours—including Close Encounters and Developing Language Through the Arts programs designed to support their schools' curricula. Families enjoyed the ever-popular Free Family Sundays programs on site and online, as well as the Community Days and Art Break Live events. Adults attended artist talks and panel discussions, Art After Hours, Open Hours, tours, and jazz concerts, and also participated in the new Violet Hour virtual events. The Necessity of Tomorrow(s) speaker series was reinvented as a digital platform to provide some immediate financial support and greater visibility for artists and arts organizations, and also provided art-making kits for families.

Community outreach grew exponentially with the successful opening of BMA Lexington Market, which attracted 8,000 curious visitors and more than 2,900 program participants.

The Necessity of Tomorrow(s) is a conversation series on art, race, and social justice. It takes its title from a Samuel Delany essay that argues for the role of creative speculation in making a more just future. By bringing visionary artists and thinkers to Baltimore to consider key ideas about society and visual culture, the BMA is providing a platform for participants and audiences to think differently about questions that affect us all.

FINANCIAL REPORT

STRONG FISCAL MANAGEMENT

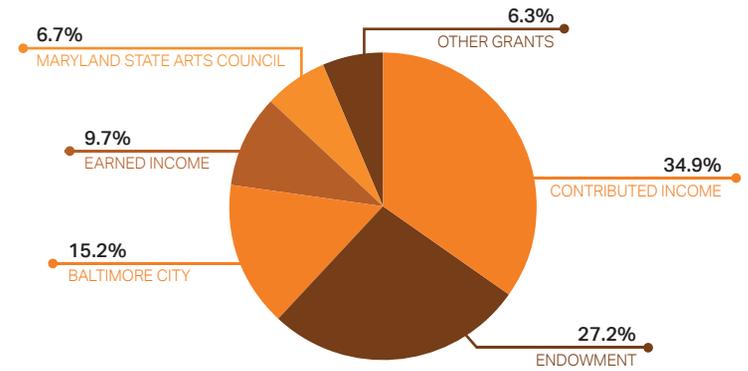

The BMA ended fiscal year 2020 with a balanced budget thanks to our generous donors and Members, the dedicated leadership of the Board of Trustees, and the resourceful Museum staff. Through their support, the Museum was able to realize many outstanding artistic and educational programs and sustain free admission despite the challenges of the pandemic. This sound fiscal management reflects the continued commitment to excellence in all areas of operation so that the citizens of Baltimore and the State of Maryland, as well as cultural tourists from around the world, can continue to enjoy and benefit from this wonderful institution. We are very grateful for everyone's generous support of the BMA and their dedication to its vibrant future.
